ATTENTION TO YOUTH AND CHILDREN IS AN INVESTMENT IN THE FUTURE

Anvar Ganiev

Director of Children's Music and Art School No. 7

Children always need love and care. The full guarantee of their rights and freedoms is extremely important for the formation of a person, the state and society's perspective.

Today, at Children's Music and Art School No. 7, operating in the Shorchi district of the Surkhandarya region of the Republic of Uzbekistan, qualified teachers provide knowledge and skills in about ten areas of music and art, based on the interests of young people.

Timely practical and theoretical lessons help each student develop their talents and fully study their chosen field. No lesson, skillfully taught by experienced teachers, will leave students indifferent.

In addition, every student participates in the competitions and events held in our school and shows his talent. Here, I would like to say that the students of our school have the right to participate in all competitions and festivals held in the fields of music and art.

Our students, who use these rights effectively, are participating in district, regional, and republican competitions and festivals, achieving high results. In addition, in our school, specific measures have been defined to increase students' participation in classes and their activity in extracurricular activities. Sufficient opportunities have been created for children, whose primary goal is to obtain an education, to effectively exercise their rights and freedoms.

It is worth emphasizing that the most important indicator of perfection in any society is reflected in a person's attitude towards goodness, social happiness, and humanistic ideas, as well as in practical activities based on them.

In our country, large-scale work is being carried out on the reliable protection of children's rights, freedoms and legal interests, as well as on the fundamental improvement of the institutional and legal foundations of the field.

In particular, the new edition of the Constitution of the Republic of Uzbekistan significantly strengthens the guarantees that ensure the health, safety, full physical, mental and spiritual development of children, as well as the manifestation of their talents and abilities.

At this point, it is worth noting that one of the factors that determine the power of the state is, without a doubt, bringing up a generation that is mentally mature, physically healthy, and perfect in all aspects. In this sense, it is clear to all of us how important and responsible task it is to raise a healthy generation in our country today.

Attention to youth and children is really an investment in the future

However, since building a legal, democratic, social, and secular state based on a strong civil society can only be fully realized through the active participation and support of our children, there is no doubt that raising boys and girls who are highly spiritual, deeply educated, modern-thinking, intellectually developed, and professionally trained will ensure our great future.
